

MY CRYSTAL BALL
Ron Lynch Chalice 4-23-86

Don't look too hard at the future
You just might lose sight of today
If you spend all your life for tomorrow
What you have now just might slip away

CHORUS:
Though the future remains to be seen
It all seems to work out somehow And if you're living in where you have been You'll never experience now

We probably have some differences though I don't know now what they are Even if they are insurmountable
I don't want to see that far

CHORUS

To see where we'll be tomorrow we would need a crystal ball to tell where we'll be ten minutes from now is an order that's already too tall

Though it's true that you might get burned
If you've decided to play with fire
But you also can miss the warmth of an experience which could take you higher
