

NOT HAVING YOU
Ron Lynch Chalice 5-17-86

Each minute together grows more important as each day we're apart grows much harder But I realize, each time I look in your eyes and I appreciate the time we share That our hours apart have no meaning when to moments together compared

CHORUS:

Not having you when I want you Isn't easy, but it's something I can take Not having you when I need you Will someday make my heart break
But don't get me wrong
As I've said all along It's a chance that I'm willing to take

You've given me more than you can ever know It's a debt that I can never repay In the time since we've met, It's become a sure bet that the words I am speaking are true and our hours apart have no meaning compared to the moments with you

CHORUS

We may someday learn the end of our story and we'll find where we'll eventually be but until that day, all I need to say is I can live with the times that I'm blue 'cause our hours apart have no meaning
compared to the moments with you

CHORUS (until fade)