

We Knew You So Well

Words and music by Ron Heimbecher, June 13, 2005

Some of us knew that smile

And the twinkle in your eye

Your keen sense of humor

Sometimes subtle, often dry

Some of us knew your giving

How you charged right into life

Your tenacious way of living

Through both happiness and strife

We knew you so well,

It seems we really didn't know you at all

Yes, we knew you so well,

It seems we really didn't know you at all

Your bright, creative side

Often took us by surprise

We could count on your advice

When we needed someone wise

When we needed volunteers

You would be the first to stand

To give your energy and time

To extend a helping hand

We knew you so well,

It seems we really didn't know you at all

Yes, we knew you so well,

It seems we really didn't know you at all

We knew you so well,

It seems we really didn't know you at all

Yes, we knew you so well,

It seems we really didn't know you at all

Please overlook the sound quality of this recording, the song was written and recorded in a very few minutes just before the services, thanks for listening, Ron
